

Cheer Up

The days are getting colder and the evenings are getting longer. The recession's getting deeper and the unemployment queue is getting longer. Petrol's more expensive as oil resources get smaller. Food is getting more expensive. The air we breathe is more polluted and driving is a nightmare. The Muslims want to cut off our heads. More animals are becoming extinct. The weather is changing with global warming. People are still warring like crackpots in various parts of the world. The ice floes are melting faster than we thought. Several nuclear submarines are slowly rusting away at the bottom of the ocean so soon we will have radio-active seas. They still keep clearing rain forests that we desperately need. Maldon is getting clogged up with mud and the state of the roads is a disgrace. We're filled to bursting but still the immigrants flood in. It rained most of the day today but I did manage to get out and buy a shotgun.
